medici.tv
medici.tv, the largest online classical music video library, boasts a collection of over 1400 classical music videos: concerts, operas, ballets, archives, documentaries, artist profiles, and educational programs. Within this resource you can search for your favorite composer or browse the catalog by performer, conductor, or musical period.

Overdrive
OverDrive powers the Huie Digital Library where you can checkout eBooks and Audiobooks and download them to your compatible devices. You either will need to be a current HSU Student, Faculty, or Staff or will need an activated Community Patron account.

Pronunciator
Pronunciator provides the interactivity, measured progress, and advanced content that university students need to support their foreign language studies; international students need to ease their transition, and faculty can use when preparing to go abroad.

These resources can be found under Databases A-Z on our website.

On Display at Huie
In celebration of Henderson State University’s 125th anniversary, Huie Library’s Special Collections staged monthly Henderson themed displays on the first floor of Huie Library and in the first floor lobby of Womack Hall. With some great old (and new!) pictures and artifacts, these displays explored the history of moving in and dorm life, Henderson buildings, the Battle of the Ravine, holidays on campus, ROTC, the 1914 fire, Henderson’s relationship with Arkadelphia, Henderson’s academic programs, and Henderson graduations and (famous) graduates.

If you’ve been in the library this year, you’ve probably seen at least one of our featured book displays. These colorful and creative displays have included the Valentine’s Day themed blind date with a book, in which readers picked a paper-covered book based on a few keywords (Is it love at first read?), the Banned Books Week themed blind date with a banned book, graphic novels for Will Eisner Week, and staff-recommended books for National Library Week. If you’ve walked past one of these displays and been curious, or haven’t seen one yet, stop by the next display and check it out. And maybe a book, too!

Library Director Changes
Bob Yehl, former director of Henderson State’s Huie Library, retired in December after 30 years of service to the university. The librarians and staff honored him at an English tea reception in the library’s Greene Room. Lea Ann Alexander has stepped in to take the lead and is the library’s current director.

New Librarians and Staff
We hired two new librarians and one new staff member this year! While not completely new to the library, Natalie Scrimsire is now our Systems and Metadata librarian. Lacy Wolfe is our new Electronic Resources and Web Services librarian. Ken Angell is a library tech working in Special Collections. He also works the reference desk at night and is the one who kicks you out of the second and third floors at 11:30.

ALA Midwinter in Boston
In January, four members of the Huie Library family attended the annual American Library Association’s Midwinter meeting in Boston. One of our library techs, Susie Kirk was invited to participate on a panel at this meeting. Kirk was chosen to speak on the panel “How Do You YouTube?” She was hand chosen, based on her work for her personal YouTube channel, where she makes videos about books and reading. Additionally, librarian Linda Evans presented on the topic of using student workers with library technical services. Also, new librarian Lacy Wolfe represented Arkansas during council sessions as the ALA Councilor for Arkansas.

Book Published by Librarian
October saw the first book published about Henderson’s history in almost 30 years. Written by Huie Library’s own David Sesser, The School with a Heart: Henderson State University at 125 tells the story of how Henderson, a small, south Arkansas college, evolved into a thriving, regional university. The limited edition book highlights the history of Henderson through photos, memories, and stories of key moments along with recollections from alumni and friends.

Student Microwave
Did you know we have a microwave available for public use on the first floor? It’s true! It’s been there since January, but because it’s tucked away in a corner, you may not have noticed it. Next time you’re in the library and need to pop some popcorn, heat up your dinner, or warm your coffee or tea, head over towards the circulation desk and use the microwave.
